

Japanese Pounding at Nanking, Take Wuhu. Cut Off Sino Retreat

Fighting All Around Chinese Capital Indicates Nipponese are Mopping up Area in Final Onslaught.

TO RESTORE RULE

Chinese Sources Say Japanese Will Restore Former Republican Chinese Government.

Shanghai, Dec. 11 (AP).—While Japanese troops still pounded Nanking's walls and five gates tonight, another Japanese column captured the important river port, Wuhu, 60 miles up the Yangtze from the capital.

Japanese army commanders, who reported the capture of Wuhu, said occupation of the city would make impossible a Chinese retreat from Nanking along the south bank of the Yangtze.

They said it also would put Japan's forces in an advantageous position for a march on Hankow farther up the Yangtze, where the Chinese have shifted their seat of government.

Capture of Wuhu came while Japanese infantry charging behind lines of tanks, were storming Nanking in a general attack. It followed reports that a Japanese had captured Chinkiang, 40 miles east of Nanking, and Taiiping, midway between the capital and Wuhu.

With fighting reported on the north bank of the Yangtze, fear was for the safety of two American missionaries, B. F. Stamps of Huntington, W. Va., and Richmond, Va., and Mary Demerit of Emerson, N. J.

They were at Yangchow, near Chinkiang, and had not been heard from for two weeks.

Stamps had arranged to evacuate on a British gunboat. He was absent, however, rescuing converts when the warship was forced to sail and leave him behind.

Heavy Air Raid.

The Japanese spokesman announced that a heavy air attack had been made on the Fokweishan forts at Nanking.

A battle was said still to be in progress at the midriver Golden Island forts and the forts opposite Chinkiang.

An official Japanese announcement said the Japanese army had taken over the safety zone in Nantao, south of Shanghai's French concession, because a Chinese sniper had fired at a Japanese sentry. It said the sniper was not hit.

The offensive against Nanking broke at 10 a. m. (9 p. m. Friday, E.S.T.) under the protection of an intensive Japanese aerial and artillery bombardment of China's abandoned capital.

Charging troops followed the tanks against the city's walls amid black showers of bombs thrown by exploding shells and bombs.

Japanese commanders admitted their front ranks were meeting stiff machine-gun and rifle fire from Chinese atop the walls.

Pointed Like Spikes

The simultaneous attacks from three directions were pointed like spokes toward the center of the city. Japanese troops last night had breached Nanking's inner wall and fought through Kuang-huamen, the southeastern gate. They had launched tank assaults on Chinghuamen, southern gate leading to the heart of the city, and on Chungshan gate in the eastern wall.

(Reports in Tokyo said Japanese officers conceded a bloody fight for the Tungchi gate had not been successful but said the battle still was raging. Naval planes were said to have carried out a mass bombing despite a wall of anti-aircraft fire.)

(The foreign office in Tokyo announced to all Japanese embassies and consulates that "the imperial army had made a victorious entry into Nanking.")

Japanese military reports to Tokyo, however, said Chinese had launched a heavy counter-attack behind a tear gas brigade. They said the counter-charge was repulsed.

(Within Nanking, an Associated Press correspondent found Chinese light artillery still arrayed along the 500-year-old ramparts, nearly 50 feet high in some parts.)

Siege Conditions

(Siege conditions prevailed, with food shops, banks and most public services not functioning.)

United States Ambassador Nelson Johnson informed the Nanking international safety zone committee he had forwarded both to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and to Japanese authorities in Shanghai and Tokyo his proposal for demilitarization of the entire walled city area of Nanking, including an already demarcated safety zone.

To Restore Republicans

Peking, China, Dec. 11 (AP).—Restoration of the former Republican National Chinese government in North China by the Japanese army within a few days was forecast today by well informed Chinese sources.

The Japanese were not as explicit but they freely predicted

At Work on Hobby House

The new hobby house on Mill street is rapidly being put into shape as a downtown youth center, under the efforts of National Youth Administration boys. The building, which formerly was a fire engine house, will add another link in the city administration's chain to provide a place to spend leisure time for all of the city's young people.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

Faithful
Western, W. Va.—Old Barney, a 12-year-old mongrel and once constant companion of "The Little Father of the Hills," has not been in jail seven months without trial.

The judge ordered his release yesterday. Manford lost no time leaving for Louisville.

For Variety's Sake
Pawhuska, Okla.—On the menu of the Oklahoma Poultry Association banquet: Barbecued buffalo.

End of Holiday
Twice Falls, Idaho—Leaving the auditorium where she had watched a high school class present the play "Death Takes a Holiday," Mrs. Julia Mills, 83, was struck by an auto and killed.

Lost Flier
Chicago—A strange bird from the Arctic selected the municipal airport for a forced landing. Edward H. Bean, director of the zoological park, identified the bird as a Merganser duck, which has the head of an eagle and the beak and web feet of a duck. Cold and stormy weather, he said, apparently swept the polar visitor off its customary coasting course in its migration to the West Indies.

Overlooked
Indianapolis—Sam Manford, 56, of Louisville, Ky., thinks he's the nation's No. 1 "forgotten man."

SHOKAN

Rhokan, Dec. 10.—Mrs. Aggie Wispell has been spending a few days at the home of her niece, Mrs. Claude Rose. Mrs. Wispell for several years was a resident of the old village of Shokan.

Larry Brandt, a summer visitor to Shokan, was at the Francis Doyle camp on the Ridge road last Sunday.

Paul James, of the corner store, made a trip to New York city Wednesday.

Miss Edna Longyear spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Albert Diller, and family, in Flushing, L. I.

The Shokan Home Bureau cafeteria supper will take place in the Reformed Church basement Monday evening, December 13, instead of Friday evening of this week.

Miss Betty Gruber of Kingston was a week-end guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Elmendorf.

December 11, 1883, the jury sitting in the celebrated Ellenville burglary case, included Calvin Boice and Richard Embree, both of Olive. A feature of the case was the trial of the accused, a Confederate Civil War colonel, and by his own admission, a hater of Yankees in general.

Frank Van Eiten of Port Ewen spent Sunday at his bungalow along the state road.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rodriguez, reported as having purchased the Mrs. Anna Sampson farm in the Heights section, were guests last summer at the Baptist Nadal farm house in the same neighborhood.

George Nichol of the Boiceville mountain road, has an additional music pupil in the person of Herbert Wells, a former Shokan boy, who now resides on the Oakley farm near Troyer Hollow.

Nichol plays and teaches a number of stringed instruments.

The telephone company has inaugurated a new system of agency collections at Winchell's store for the convenience of phone subscribers in the large Shokan automatic central district.

Several local families are busily engaged in fashioning Christmas wreaths and replying for the Kingston stores.

Mrs. C. G. Fuller, of the north boulevard, left Shokan Monday for Brooklyn, her former home, where she will spend the holidays with relatives.

Postmaster Julia Winchell, chairman of the Olive Red Cross, reports a total of approximately $70 collected in the current Red Cross campaign. The amount is slightly less than last year's total.

Field workers in the drive were as follows: Miss Edna Longyear, Shokan; Mrs. E. Clayton Burgher, West Shokan; Mrs. Justus North, Shokan; Mrs. Fred Guinac, Ashokan; and John Marshall of Olive Bridge.

There was a light fall of snow here Wednesday night and much of this has remained on the ground as a result of the recent cold snap.

Kerhonkson Union School Activities

The Board of Education has approved the purchase of work books in Remedial Reading. This is due to the results shown in a recent testing program in which it was found that a large percentage of the high school students were deficient in reading skills. A class will be formed very shortly for those who need it with the intention of producing better reading throughout the school.

Arthur Chipp, Cub Master of the Kerhonkson Den, has announced that his boys again this year will distribute Christmas baskets to the needy. The boys in his Cub Pack are: Percy Greene, Richard Lane, Philip Gray, Philip Decker, Joseph McAuliffe, Herbert Megel, Marvin Schneek, John Stone, Donald Hilleck, Calvin Malinka, Erwin Gutkin and Robert Terwilliger.

At the last meeting of the P. T. A. the members voted to produce a play sometime in February. This is to be cast and directed by Fritz Foord, who directs dramatics at the high school. The P. T. A. banner for the month of December was presented to the Senior Class, this being the second time that they have won it. The banner is awarded each month to the room which has the greatest number of parents enrolled in the P. T. A.

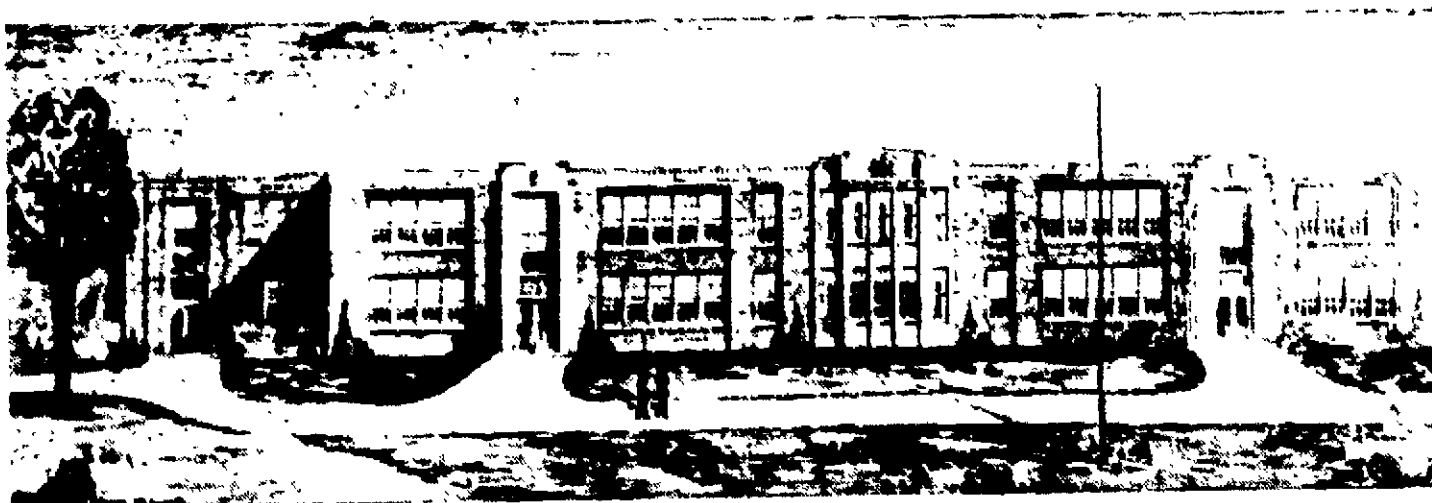

Badminton will be introduced as a student activity this week. The equipment was purchased by the Student Association. Every pupil who so desires will have an opportunity to participate in this game which seems to have a universal appeal. Mr. Foord explained the intricacies of playing to the assembly last Friday.

Parents and pupils are to be congratulated for the fine cooperation which they have shown in bettering the attendance record both in the grades and high school. During the past month on no day was there more than 12 pupils absent in the entire school and on two days there was but one absentee. Since the State Aid is figured on a basis of the average daily attendance, this will probably result in an increased apportionment.

As a result of the last quarter's examinations, pupils have had their schedules readjusted both by dropping a subject or being transferred to another section. Readjustment has been made in the General Science classes and it is expected that the same will soon be done regarding English 1 and English 2.

"United States Square" is the name given a park in Rio de Janeiro. It sounds like a compliment, but Rio is capital of the United States of Brazil.

Dedicated Last Night

Architect's drawing of the new central high and grade school building at Marlborough, which was dedicated last night with appropriate ceremonies. The building was designed by Gerard Betz, Kingston architect, and was constructed as a federal project. It will house 940 pupils.

At The Theatres

Today

Broadway: "A Damsel in Distress". The dancing Fred Astaire, minus partner Ginger Rogers, breezes his cheery way through another brisk and tuneful musical comedy adventure with George Burns and Gracie Allen as his chief supporters. This play has everything to make it a certain success for the songs are well sung, the acting is excellent and the laughs come thick and fast. Gracie Allen is especially valuable to Mr. Astaire in the dance sequences and the whole show is comical and vastly entertaining. The scene where Astaire, Allen and Burns perform before mirrors that throw them out of focus is one of the bright spots of the film. Here is an RKO Radio presentation that is light, laughable and thoroughly enjoyable.

Kingston: "Ebb Tide". A South Sea Island tale of violent beauty and picturesque camera effect is to be seen on the Kingston screen in this adaptation of a Robert Louis Stevenson story. It concerns a man who thinks himself God and it also has to do with two people in love. The scenes where the island is swept by a hurricane are gripping in their reality and the acting of Oscar Homolka, Frances Farmer and Ray Milland is adequate and often brilliant. This Paramount picture also has the added benefit of Technicolor.

Orpheum: "Hotel Haywire". A lively musical number that centers around a swank hotel is offered in the first feature at the downtown theatre with Leo Carrillo and Mary Carlisle featured in a large cast. "Old Wyoming Hills" is a bracing tale of the west where men are men and where Charles Starrett, the singing star of the play, proves to be the best man of all.

Tomorrow

Broadway: Same.

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: "The Shadow Strikes". Great mystery and great excitement visit the Orpheum screen during the week-end as the mysterious Shadow lives, escapes, baffles and thrills with Rod LaRocque and Lynn Anders featured. The last chapter in the serial "SOS Coast Guard" will also be shown and the first chapter in "Zorro Rides Again" will also be an added feature on the program.

THEATRE ASSOCIATION EXPLAINS FOR PROGRAMS

December 10, 1937.

The Kingston Daily Freeman

Kingston, New York

To the Editor:

The publicity committee of the Ulster County Theatre Association together with the executive committee, wish to extend their thanks to you as well as to your staff for the kind cooperation you have given them in the production of "Give Us This Day".

We trust that you will continue your cooperation in the establishment of a permanent community theatre for Ulster county.

Will you extend to your readers the apologies of the publicity

WALKKILL

Walkkill, Dec. 11.—The Women's Club will meet on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Belle Carr at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Charles Moore, Mrs. Harry Dunn and Mrs. F. R. Bosch will discuss "Home Personality." Social chairman will be Mrs. James B. Crowell.

The Women's Bible Study class will hold its annual election of officers on Tuesday evening, December 14, at 8 o'clock at the meeting which will be held at the parsonage with Mrs. F. R. Bosch.

The Walkkill unit of the Home Bureau will hold a luncheon at 1 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, December 14, at the home of Mr. George Sherwood. This will be the first lesson on "Food."

Walkkill Armenians were summoned to the small one-room home of Clem Hedder on the Hoarberg on Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock, and extinguished the blaze, caused by oil being spilled, while filling an oil stove, but not before the house was almost totally destroyed. Mr. Hedder received slight burns on his face and hands.

Mr. and Mrs. George LeFevre, the Misses Leola Fredell and Dean Smith were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Tears on Sunday.

It is hoped that the Walkkill Manufacturing Company will re-open after the first of the new year. Bankruptcy proceedings under Section 77B of Acts of Congress will be held in the court house, Foley Square, Manhattan, at a hearing on December 20, at 4:45 p. m. The hat factory closed its doors two weeks ago, still owing a payroll of $15,000, to the employees who were from Walkkill and vicinity for two weeks' work in November.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henke, of Kingston, spent Sunday with her father, Warren V. Deyo and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lockwood spent the week-end at Fitchville with Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Everetts.

Mrs. Claude Decker, Mrs. George Hammesfahr, Mrs. Edwin Jansen and Mrs. F. R. Bosch attended the dedication services of a new pipe organ in the First Presbyterian Church, Newburgh, on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. James Terwilliger, and son, James, are spending a few days this week with her mother at Troy.

Mr. and Mrs. Macey Van Wagenen and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dunn attended the Ulster County Farm Bureau banquet at the Clinton Avenue Church, Kingston, on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Pemberton, of Central Valley, visited Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morehouse on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Teller attended the funeral of her uncle, John Schoonmaker at the Friends' Church, Tillsen on Tuesday.

The attendance was far beyond the expectation of the committee. The association is grateful and proud of the interest shown by the people of this region.

Sincerely yours,

WILLIAM JENKINS, Jr.,
For the Committee.

Cast Named in Mystery Farce

The following is the cast for "The Haunted Tea Room," a mystery farce to be presented at the Wurts Street Baptist Church Monday evening, December 13:

Linda Berry, a pretty young miss . . . Natalie La Tour

Lillian Ewel.

Den Smith, the boy next door . . . Louis Salzmann.

Herace Witherspoon, a burgologist . . . Teddy Wood.

Claire Landon, a perfect lady . . . Margaret La Tour.

Josephine Boggs, a rowdy . . . Florence Smith.

Snoopy Crane, an amateur detective . . . Ronald Hilroy.

Gerald Fenwick, a newsy reporter . . . Albert Salzmann.

Jessie Jones, the kitchen maid . . . Evelyn Will.

This play, written by Anno Coelter Martens, tells of the Willovers Tea Room and Inn, which has a reputation of harboring a ghost who walks at midnight. Storm-bound at the inn at the time of the play, several young people attempt to solve the mystery.

It is devoid of gruesomeness, of tricky mechanics or of gun play, but holds the desirable qualities of uniqueness of plot, suspense, curiosity, comedy and drama.

The play is presented by the Luther League of St. Paul's Lutheran Church under the auspices of the choir of the Wurts Street Baptist Church.

Since the choir was organized some two years ago it has purchased vestments, a great deal of new music and made substantial donations to the maintenance of the church. It is now one of the most active organizations of the church. Its efforts musically are decided assets to the church services.

Mrs. G. D. Logan Heads Association

Mrs. George D. Logan of Garden street was re-elected president of the Ulster County Hairdressers' Association at the annual meeting held Thursday in the beauty salon of Miss Helen Walsh on Wall street.

The other officers elected were first vice president, Miss Helen Walsh; second vice president, Mrs. Peggy Ganter; secretary, Miss Ann Ruckert; assistant secretary, Miss Mary Durbok; treasurer, Miss Helen Wright of Highland; delegates to convention, Mrs. Logan and Miss Ruckert; alternate, Miss Helen Wright.

Plans for the annual installation banquet to be held in January were made. The banquet committee is composed of Miss Ruckert, Miss Mary Durbok, Miss Eva Van De Bokart and Mrs. Warner.

Grassy Point, N. Y., Dec. 11 (AP)—Hard times have forced the closing of the old post office where Postmaster General James A. Farley got his first ideas of politics.

Postmaster-Storkeeper Vincent Hannigan, a Farley appointee, tacked up a notice that the 103-year-old post office would close for good next Wednesday.

Hannigan explained he had declined to continue the office because the volume of business was too small. "My pay for the past year was less than $50," he said. The town expects now to get total free delivery.

Farley, who was born at Grassy Point May 30, 1888, as a boy used to collect the family mail at the post office, then the laundering place of local politicians.

The town's population, once in the thousands, dropped to about 200 after a bricks works moved away.

Boys' Books Asked By Two Places

Mrs. J. C. Fraser, president of the Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs, has had two requests for boys' books, one from the municipal recreation center and one from the Institution for Juvenile Delinquents at Warsaw. The following committee has been appointed to take charge of the collection of these books. Mrs. Thomas Edmondson, Mrs. William Longyear, Mrs. Margaret Bertrand, Miss Cora Drake and Miss Ella Bernard.

The mayor has kindly offered the use of a room at the municipal auditorium for the collection of these books. Anyone having books to donate, please take them to the room in the rear of the stage at the auditorium. Those unable to deliver the books are asked to telephone Mrs. Thomas Edmondson at 80 Pine street, 1833, and some member of the committee will call for them.

Magazines such as National Geographic, Munsey's, Scientific America and other boys' magazines will be very acceptable. This collection must be completed by January 2. Your book may influence the future of some boy's life and the Federation hopes for a generous response.

Melbourne, Australia.—Shopkeepers reported they could sell all available shark meat at 12 cents a pound. They said housewives had been won over to the new foodstuffs, which tastes much like cod, and has few bones.

Who—Me?

Yes, you may be the next to catch cold. Be careful! At the first sign take Father John's Medicine, used 83 years in treating colds, and as a body builder. This is convincing proof of its value—it must be good.

THE TOWNSEND RECOVERY PLAN

Hundreds of people in Kingston would be happy included in the Townsend Recovery Plan, known as the General Welfare Act of 1937, 4199b, still pending in Congress, enacted into law—for their own benefit—old and young. Also for the marvelous boom it would bring to business and the unemployed and the whole industrial world. Why then do you not join the local club and help speed this movement to success? Expense very small. Results large. Address Sec'y Townsend Club, Kingston, or phone 356J.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER
 NEW YORK—A kindly little man with a benign smile and fitted out in the cowl of an Irish monk is reaping a harvest of applause every night in the week and sometimes in the afternoon. His face and his brogue are as solidly Irish as a cornucopia and a pint of whiskey. He is a Jew. Think back a few years. Ten years anyway, perhaps a little longer. "Oh, Mr. Gallagher! Oh, Mr. Gallagher! Hello, what's on your mind this morning, Mr. Shean?" Shean, that's the name. Al Shean. In those old hey-days of the fabulous Ziegfelds he stepped into a musical show and saw it blossom into a theatrical legend. And from it came the Gallagher-Shean song, the ballad with a thousand verses. You remember. If you didn't know enough verses, you made 'em up. It lengthened out like a fakir's rope, or a chain of sausage links that never, never became exhausted.

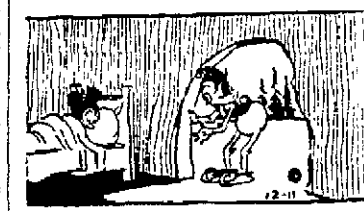

NOW COME BACK to Broadway of 1937. Of last week, in fact. And travel on down to the St. James, where a curiously warming surprise package has been set down by Delos Chappell. It is "Father Malachy's Miracle," a more welcome addition could not be named. They go behind the scenes in this play where a Catholic church is set down across the street from a Scottish nightclub. It comes with something of a shock to Protestants to see several priests walking around in their own quarters, genuinely human fellows who laugh and wise crack and get off occasional witticisms. They say that during rehearsals Mr. Chappell and his director, Worthington Minor, invited one of New York's best known priests down to see that the playwright hadn't made any mistakes—that the behavior of the monks was as it should be—that certain ritualistic features were in keeping with the ritual of the church. When the Father witnessed a complete rehearsal he nodded approvingly, but added, somewhat dryly: "I'm almost afraid to give this to the laity for fear they may criticize us on Sunday."

WELL, it has been a long time since the Mr. Shean of Gallagher fame was warbling his foolery on a musical stage. Now, in his seventies, and with the enthusiasm of a brash youngster, he has started out on a new career. He is simply a serious actor. And what does he think of it? "I've had 50 years of comedy—50 years of dumb caps and pies thrown in my face—throwing pies they were, too. I'm tired. It's time I acquired a little dignity."

The Two Cents

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
 THE bears went inside their cave. How happy they were to feel and sniff its dear homelike smell. They curled up and went to sleep. In the meantime the Puddle Muddlers had gone searching for the two cents which seemed so important to Honey Bear.

This money so much or where she got it in the first place," cawed Christopher Columbus Crow. But he was the one who found them, for somehow he had an idea afterward that she wanted these coins for some very special purpose. He gave them to Willy Nilly and, joined by the other Puddle Muddlers, they went back. It was hard to awaken the bears but at last Honey Bear awoke, and the others half awoke. "They're for you, Willy Nilly," she whispered. "They aren't much—we wanted to get you a present before we went to sleep and we tried to set up a nut stand and be—business bears." Sleepily she told the story of what had happened to get the two cents. Willy Nilly put his arms around Honey Bear. "You did that for me at a time when you want every bite of food you can find. Oh, Honey Bear, I am so grateful," he whispered. The Puddle Muddlers thought it was very beautiful of Honey Bear and the others to have done this for Willy Nilly. "Two cents don't amount to much," murmured Honey Bear, "but they do make a little present." She was asleep and so were the others but Willy Nilly and the Puddle Muddlers wished the sleeping, loyal, unselfish bears the sweetest of bear dreams.

"THREE OF A KIND"

Rumblin' Notes About the Town

Of course there is a Santa Claus. He lives and breathes and has his being in the hearts of every adult who has not forgotten the days when he was a child, and that the biggest day in all the year was Christmas. As long as this old world rolls on there will be Christmas and a Santa Claus to signify that at least there is still a trace of good will left in the hearts of all of us.

And Santa Claus is coming to Kingston this year as usual and it will not be the fault of the members of the Christmas Cheer Committee if he overlooks a single child. The committee is now busy soliciting funds—and some $1,500 is needed—and in checking over the names of the children to see in it that every child who would otherwise be forgotten is remembered on the days of days.

There may be forgotten men in Kingston, but it will not be the fault of the splendid-hearted men and women of the city if there is any child who will look in vain for the visit of the patron saint of childhood.

There is no more pathetic sight in the world than to look into the home of some child on Christmas morning and to find the little one looking to see if Santa Claus has filled the stocking that with high hope had been hung up in a spot where he could not fail to see it, and then for the child to realize that Santa Claus had really forgotten to stop down the chimney during the night.

One of the greatest thrills in a youngster's life is to realize that there is a Santa Claus and that he has not been forgotten by the genial old fellow. That many children will be looking forward to his visit is found in the number daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Addis. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sheldon left this week for their winter's employment in Florida. Mrs. Claude Terwilliger, Mrs. George Bush were in Poughkeepsie on Thursday. Mrs. Adelbert Sheldon and Mr. George Smith spent Wednesday last with Mrs. Lottie Hook. Mrs. S. Wells entertained her daughter from Poughkeepsie last week. Mrs. Florence Barber and daughter, Lorna, returned to their home in Plattsburg on Wednesday, after visiting her brother, John Riddell, at the Whitaker home. The Thursday afternoon bridge club met last week with Mrs. James Anderson. Mrs. James Grant and Mrs. Moses E. Green as substitutes for Mrs. David Murphy were score winners. Mrs. David Burgher and son, Harold, Mrs. Asa Burgher, daughter, Edna, have been frequent visitors at Kingston Hospital last week to call on the former's husband, David Burgher, who has been seriously ill, but is improving.

The many friends of Cashier Irving E. Colville will be sorry to learn that he is seriously ill at his home. A speedy recovery is wished for him.

DARE TO DREAM

BY ALICE MARIE DODGE
 The Characters
 Nelda, a beautiful, dark-eyed, dark-haired girl, is forced to sacrifice her personal ambitions, and run a ranch.
 Fick, blond, dashing and wealthy, is charming to Nelda. Bill, a tanned young man with blue eyes, disapproves of Nelda.
 Mrs. Reckless, Nelda's cold and arrogant mother, subtly warns Nelda that Fick is not for her. Leila, Nelda's selfish, interfering-law, wants the ranch divided.

Chapter Five Facing Stark Reality

"I'll have to think it over, Leila," said Nelda.
 Leila sniffed.
 "There's nothing to think over so far as I can see."
 Nelda picked up the dishes at her place and carried them into the kitchen. There she met Uncle Ham.
 "Leila been devilin' you about dividin'?" he whispered, his faded gray eyes bright beneath his bushy brows.
 Nelda nodded.
 Uncle Ham motioned toward the dining room with his cane.
 "She's been crabin' about the place ever since we came. It'll be much nicer here with her gone."
 "But—" Nelda hurried past him. What was the use of telling him or anybody else that she detested living on a ranch, let alone running one?
 Later, Nelda sought out Laura Sweeney in the kitchen.
 She wanted to be firm and dignified, but her words tumbled out in a confused rush.
 "Mrs. Sweeney, we can't afford to keep you any longer! This is a week's notice!"
 "I don't know where to go," Mrs. Sweeney gave a dismal sigh and drained the contents of the coffee pot into her cup.
 "Surely you can get another job," Nelda suggested.
 "Jobs ain't hangin' on trees these days," Mrs. Sweeney sighed again, and Nelda was touched. "If you'll let me stay until the first of the month maybe—" Mrs. Sweeney paused and looked piteously at Nelda.
 "Well—" There was a gentleness in the girl's tone, and Mrs. Sweeney took advantage of it.
 "Thanks!" she exclaimed and bustled into the dining room to gather up the dishes, leaving her coffee untouched.
 Nelda let it go at a loss. She would try to find a job for the woman through the "Help Wanted" columns or through friends in the city.

A Walk With Cinders
 THE household tasks finished, she put a little sweater on Cinders and started for a walk.
 Candy ran after them, but was halted by her mother.
 "Candis!" Leila called sharply. "Get in out of the cold! This is no day for—strolling!"
 "I gotta go back," the child whispered to Nelda. "She always calls me Candis when she's mad."
 Nelda went on. Dew glistened, jewel-like on the grass and trees. The hale scent of damp earth met her nostrils. The ranch was dappled with soft lights and shadows made by the widening glow of the morning. A thin spiral of smoke rose where Stan was burning brush in the orchard. The denuded limbs of the trees gleamed whitely.
 Nelda veered away from the place where Stan was working. She didn't want to talk to her brother now.
 Bright tears brimmed in her eyes. She was thinking of her colleagues trooping gayly into warm classrooms while she was facing the stark realities of life. She toyed with a plan to work her way through college, but abandoned it when she recalled her mother's helplessness. There was not enough money to employ any one to take care of her mother.
 Cinders frolicked ahead of her, stopping occasionally to poke his nose into a gopher hole.
 At the end of the orchard Nelda paused beside the board fence that breasted the highway. Leaning against a post, she became lost in thought.
 The snarling of dogs startled her out of her reflections. Casting a swift look around, she saw Cinders and a fox terrier fighting across the road. She scrambled over the fence, calling her dog's name.
 A whistle cut the air. She saw a small, marmoset form silhouetted against the morning sunshine in a barren field on the other side of the highway.
 "Wiggly!" the man called sharply, but to no avail. The two dogs were going at each other like mortal enemies.
 When the man came closer Nelda recognized him. He was Bill Langdon. By the time he reached them eyes making them look like chips of ice. "You're acting as if you're the only person who ever had to—take it," he wheeled and strode toward his home with something sturdy and grim in the whole set of his figure. The fox terrier ran ahead of him.

Bill's blue eyes were like chips of ice.

 Nelda's eyes opened wide as she stared after him.
 "Why—why—" she spluttered, "the nerve of him!"

HOME BUREAU

Lake Katrine
 Lake Katrine, Dec. 10. Pneumonia control was the topic at the lesson in health for the Lake Katrine unit on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Hubert Brink. Miss Ploss of the health department very ably conducted the demonstration which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. Miss Ploss reviewed the first lesson briefly with discussion and questions. The unit was particularly interested in the making of a mustard plaster, and the various things added to a plaster which came to light in the discussion were amusing and interesting. According to the leader a plaster should contain in proportion according to strength desired, mustard, flour and warm water, the consistency of which only experience can teach.
 The meeting then proceeded to the bedroom with Mrs. Hubert

Brink as the patient and a demonstration given on the care of a patient in bed whether it be a communicable disease or not. This included changing the bed, keeping the patient covered at all times, bathing, care of the hair, hands and feet, temperature reading, placing everything within reach of the patient if able to help a little, care of the attendant and every phase of sick room necessity.

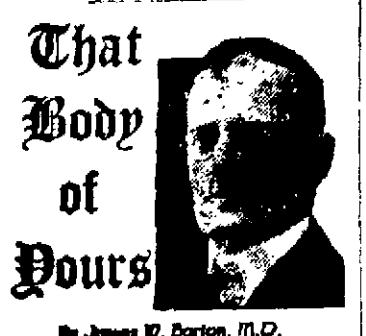

These were present: Miss Ploss, Mrs. Hubert Brink, Mrs. Hugh Ferguson, Mrs. Philip Hendricks, Mrs. Everett, Mrs. Golden Rogers, Mrs. Daniel Morehouse, Mrs. William Jones, Mrs. Herman Schier, Mrs. Joseph Dillman, Mrs. Schier, Mrs. Satorford, Mrs. George Adams and Mrs. Kenneth Parish.
 Miss Ploss gave out literature on colds, influenza and pneumonia and all left at a late hour after thanking the hostess and Miss Ploss for a very instructive afternoon.

chinery and brains will pull us through. Doubtless they could, if we pulled together intelligently and tolerantly, instead of fighting and stalling and working at cross-purposes so much of the time.

LONGER LIFE

Speaking of the fact that human life is lengthening nowadays, in spite of our economic difficulties, a business writer says: "The deep irony of it is that, while most of us are living longer, the earning years appear to be shortening." This comes from a new "industrial discipline," with its pressure on employers "to take on only men who can turn out the money."

What is the use of living longer, if the earning years are shorter and the long years of enforced leisure following middle age are to be years of poverty? Such a system doesn't make sense. This is one of the craziest situations our confused industrial economy has blundered into. It is unjust to millions of people. It prevents the "abundance" that everybody talks about. It throws a growing burden of charity upon public treasuries already overburdened.

That Body of Yours

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act)
 A patient called on a physician and asked that he examine a sample of urine which he brought in a four ounce bottle. The physician found a considerable amount of sugar in the urine and telephoned the patient to call again. The patient passed some urine which the physician examined immediately and he was unable to find any sugar. Examination of urine the following week and then again two weeks later showed the urine to be clear of sugar.
 Now the patient may have had a little sugar in his urine the first time or the bottle in which he carried the first lot of urine may have had some medicine containing a small amount of sugar before the urine was put into it.
 You can thus see that if urine hadn't been examined more than once, the patient might have been considered a diabetic and put on a diabetic diet or even given injections of insulin.
 Dr. J. L. Wade in Proceedings of Staff Meetings, Mayo Clinic, calls attention to the harm that is done to individuals in whom a small amount of sugar is a "normal" condition, and the living on a diabetic diet and receiving insulin causes loss of weight, tiredness, nervousness, and insulin "reactions."

When there is just this small amount of sugar in the urine—renal or kidney sugar—but no abnormal increase of sugar in the blood, it is not diabetes, and there is no reason to endanger health and happiness by calling these individuals diabetics.
 "There are two types of this condition—sugar in urine only. There is the continuous type, in which all specimens of urine contain sugar, and the cyclic type in which the sugar in the urine occurs only after eating a large amount of starch food."
 The thought then is that this small amount of sugar in the urine is not uncommon, and runs in some families. It is harmless, causes no symptoms or disturbances in the body, and does not predispose or make the individual likely to develop true diabetes. In a series of 104 cases of this type of sugar in the urine, only one case later developed diabetes, which is not more than would develop in 104 cases where there is no sugar in the urine.
 So do not let the finding of a little sugar in the urine upset you. Have further samples of urine tested for sugar and also the amount of sugar in the blood.

Overweight and Underweight
 A splendid booklet by Dr. Barton, dealing with the subject of your weight as a factor in good health, is available. Do you weigh too much—too little? What do you do to control your weight? Send for this latest Barton Booklet, "Overweight and Underweight," enclosing Ten Cents each, to cover cost of service and handling, and mention the Kingston Daily Freeman. Send your request to The Bell Library, 247 West 43rd street, New York, N. Y.

Dec. 11, 1937—The Freeman

One of the victims of the big depression was an organist, the best player of church music in a city of a million people. He had given his life to music. He was at the top of his profession. He lost his savings in the failure of an industrial enterprise. The church which had provided most of his income for many years, driven to economize, let him go.

Music was all he knew. He tramped the streets for many months looking for any kind of musical work. Finally he went on public relief, qualified for a WPA job, and was sent out in mid-winter on a pick-and-shovel project. He tried to use his shovel with those hundred-thousand-dollar hands, trained in delicacy of touch for 30 years, and was so clumsy that the boss promptly fired him.

Here is one little picture of the sort of thing that has happened all over this country to thousands of men and women skilled in music, art, drama, literature, science, and all the learned professions. In normal times we regard them as the cream of our civilization. In hard times we neglect them, and even complain when relief projects enable them to keep body and soul together by doing what they have spent their lives learning to do. A civilized nation should take better care of its most civilized people.

ECONOMY THROUGH HEALTH
 Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service, urges a national health program. We already know enough about certain diseases, he says, to cut down greatly their yearly toll of death. He regards this not merely as a great humanitarian challenge but as essential to our economic well-being. When people ask him whether the country can afford such a program, he answers that it can not afford to carry the present load of preventable sickness. He says:
 Ill health is now bad business. It is possible, by applying the public health knowledge we now have, to cut down greatly the economic losses caused by preventable diseases. It is far less expensive to control these diseases than to continue to pay tax money, charity and insurance dollars for the needlessly sick and premature dead.
 The money saving would begin immediately. The accumulation of savings in a generation would be vast. It would amortize the money spent to effect this economy.
 There are many laymen and physicians who agree with Dr. Parran's objective but who urge great caution to avoid the extremes of socialized medicine. A middle course should be quite possible if there is wholehearted cooperation between public and private health agencies.

PESSIMISM FROM AN EXPERT
 Frolicking at a Yale barn party in New Jersey, Henry R. Luce, who is publisher of Times, Fortune and Life, is said to have characterized this present world as "cockeyed and lousy" and "headed for the junk heap." He finds our civilization "degrading," and our people "deteriorating biologically." If we seem cheerful, it's because "we don't realize we're about two jumps ahead of the sheriff—destruction." "Man today is making a very rapid transition into a new kind of existence. But the big question is, can he make it rapidly enough? If he can't, it means the degradation of mankind, the collapse of civilization."
 Most of us will probably regard this as wild exaggeration, in spite of slumps and panics and revolutions and a revival of old tyrannies in other lands. Maybe we're really the Chosen People of this age. Maybe our resources, ma-

The long road, the short road, the road we all must tread. The pilgrimage to Somewhere leads to the journey's end. The plain road, the vague road, where men and women go with eager, hopeful, rapid pace, or leaden steps and slow. The high road, the low road, the path of joy or pain; The road that leads to Somewhere, that never turns again. The path of flowers and sunshine, but few will tread that way. For most the path is stony, the sky o'er cast and gray. By long road or short road, a road that all must tread. We'll surely meet at Somewhere that marks our journey's end. —Grenville Kleiser.

If all the "engineering triumphs" mentioned by the manufacturers of automobiles were combined in one car, wouldn't it be a humdinger?

It's the extras that attract buyers—at least it did this one. A Scotsman was viewing a new motor car, but all the salesman's eloquence failed to bring him to purchasing point. Recently officers around Washington, D. C., were looking for a hitch-hiker to whom a motorist had given a ride. The body of the motorist was found on a nearby Virginia road and nine miles away his car was found wrecked and witnesses appeared who saw a youth crawl out of the wreck and leave. Apparently it is the same old story of the kind-hearted but foolish motorist who picked up a scoundrel and paid the supreme penalty of his folly. In spite of the tragedies of this type on the highways and continuous warnings, motorists continue to invite death in this way.

ARDONIA.

Ardonia, Dec. 10.—The Mid-Hudson Philatelic Society met at the home of Mrs. Eber Coy Tuesday, December 7. The following members were present: Mr. and Mrs. Troy Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Tillson, and Miss Martha Bunnish of Highland; Miss Florence Morrissey of Walden; Mrs. Beatrice Grimm, Mr. and Mrs. Eber Smith and Miss Margaret Smith of Modena; Mrs. Eber Coy and Miss Margaret Cook of Ardonia; Mrs. Russell Smith of Marlborough. After the regular business meeting Troy Cook gave an interesting talk on the educational value of stamp collecting and what stamp collecting as a hobby means to him. Miss Bunnish brought an interesting card game, "Stamps," which was enjoyed by all present. The next meeting will be with Miss Morrissey, January 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Eber Coy, Miss Margaret Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Paltridge attended the annual Farm and Home banquet at the Methodist Church in Kingston recently. Eugene Paltridge was a caller in Modena Wednesday. Robert Coy joined the Boys 4-H Club in Clintondale last week. Mr. and Mrs. Eber Coy and Mrs. O. L. Cook were callers in Newburgh Wednesday.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, Dec. 10.—The Ladies' Aid held an all-day weekly meeting at the church basement on Wednesday. The members welcomed the presence of their president, Mrs. Nettie Jones, who was called away to Newark, N. J., due to the death of her brother-in-law, Dr. Edward Phelan. The work program was devoted entirely to quilting. One quilt was finished and another is nearing completion. The workers are now doing their fifth quilt and two more orders are in waiting. A hot bounteous dinner was served and greatly enjoyed. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Jones, Mrs. Mary Hyde and son, Warren, Mrs. Ole Bell, Mrs. Fannie Bole, Mrs. Charles Richter, Mrs. Janie Eckert, Mrs. Alice Bell, Mrs. Lawrence Bell, Mrs. Bertha Bell, Miss Shirley Bell, Mrs. Adie Brethaupt, Miss Jennie Kerr, Catruth Avery and Mrs. Maile C. SANTA and the WHITE FOX

by SIGRID ARNE

THE STORY SO FAR: The Queen of Fairies has introduced a pert sailor doll to Santa. The sailor says he can rescue Helga, the doll, that was stolen from the toyshop by the white fox.

Chapter 12

The Sailor Starts Out
Santa was dreadfully curious when he woke the next morning and found his toyshop already at work. The sailor doll told him they were making the fastest ice boat in the whole North, called "The Spray."

Then the Queen of Fairies said: "The fox is wearing a string of bells. If you need me, steal the bells from him, and ring them. I'll come."

Just before the sailor started to search for Helga in his iceboat Mrs. Santa gave him a fine gift. It was a warm suit of the softest white leather with a little jacket that fitted him high about his neck.

Then the sailor climbed into his boat, looked up to see which way the wind was blowing, set his sails and slid off down the hill and out of sight.

He had scarcely been gone an hour when he saw ahead of him dozens of squirrels running excitedly in and out of a big oak tree. So he reeled his sails and came to a stop in their midst.

"Please, sir, where's the acorn?" said a little lady squirrel all dressed up in a long green coat.

"Look Him Up!"

"Acorns?" said the sailor. "What do you mean?"

"Now stop pretending," said the lady squirrel. "Give it to me."

"PLEASE, SIR, WHERE'S THE ACORN?"

"I really don't know what you're talking about."

Then a very old gentleman took his pipe out of his mouth and said, "Maybe the boy is right. Let squirrel, who had been watching, him talk."

So the six squirrels stepped aside and the sailor, lying on the ground all tied up, said, "What acorn do you mean?"

"The acorn that will make our son shrink," said the old squirrel. "The Woods Fairy said she was sending it to us today."

A Magic Acorn
"Well, I saw her only this morning over at Santa's toyshop," said the sailor. "But she didn't mention it. And why should your son shrink?"

lady squirrel. "Because he's too big."

"Gracious, where is he?" asked the sailor. "How did he get too big?"

"He ate so many berries that the Woods Fairy put a magic acorn in his rath and made him swell up ten times his size when he ate it. But the more he swells the more of her berries he eats. You see it wasn't very good punishment. So now the Woods Fairy is sending us an acorn that will make him shrink again."

"But what can I do about it?" said the sailor.

"You'll have to get that acorn before you can go on," said the determined lady squirrel. So the sailor promised he would.

CHALLENGE TO CHIZZLEWITS

THERE once was a merchant named Chizzlewit who trimmed his tree every Christmas and his customers every day.

He was a canny creature, this Chizzlewit, and knew how to win a customer by guile. The shirts he sold were cheaply woven, packed with powder to make them seem firm. To conceal their inferiority he told customers that he always wore them himself. In the glassware department he "made up" for poor quality by giving a set of pretty paper doilies with every purchase. He knew many such clever tricks and used them without reserve.

Chizzlewit never advertised. He knew too well he could never fool people for long in print.

Advertising must live up to its own claims. That is why you can have full confidence in goods consistently advertised. If the maker has a worthy product, fairly priced, he wants as many people as possible to know about it. If the product is unworthy, the printed word will only expose it sooner.

Christmas, and all around the calendar, read advertising. Makers and merchants stake their reputation, in cold black type, that what you read is true.

Fashions and Household Hints For Women

Beauty

A Beauty Counter Christmas Is Sure To Please Your Lady

Atomizer Triplets

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

Give gifts of beauty to the woman you want to flatter. Bride, matron or grandmother, every woman is perennially concerned with personal loveliness. She'll take the evidence that you recognize it as a cherished complement.

But don't walk into the first department store you come to and buy just anything you see on the beauty counter.

Most women have set notions about the shade of their powder and rouge. So, unless you know those shades, it's a good idea to steer clear.

Lipstick? Perhaps though most women will try a new lipstick long before they will think of giving up their favorite rouge and powder.

Beauty accessories, on the other hand, are gifts of another color. Few women have enough of them.

Perfume and toilet water atomizers make especially welcome gifts. But you'd better know what you're going after. Buy a small one if you're in doubt. It cuts down on waste. See that it isn't top-heavy, that it will stand wear and tear, and that the top fastens easily and stays put.

Compacts should be large, flat and light in weight.

Bottle kits should contain enough bottles or packets. They should be reasonably large, but should fit into the smallest suitcase. They should have a handle so they may be hung up in berths or compartments.

Leather manicure sets are much less expensive—and handsomer—this season than ever. They should be equipped with the correct accessories, including good scissors. (Test the scissors and you'll know whether the set is a good one or not.)

Comb and brush sets should be decorative and practical. The brush should have firm, resilient bristles. The comb should be fine or coarsetoothed—or a combination—depending on the type and length of the hair of the user. The mirror should be clear and large.

Dress To Please Your Man— That's First Rule Of Fashion

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Fashion Editor

New York—The most important thing in fashion is dressing to please your man.

He cares about what you wear and can be more irritated than you think by the wrong color or hat. Pleasing him should mean more to you than a listing in "the ten best dressed."

Consult his taste and cater to it. He may know more than you about: (1) how a certain color looks on you, (2) the way a dress and hat look in the back, (3) the effect of both on your whole silhouette.

To give you first hand facts on what men like in women's clothes, I canvassed both bachelors and married men in one of America's largest organizations. This is what I learned.

Men like simplicity first in women's clothes. Dresses with knickknacks on shoulders or hips, standing out from the natural body line, are their pet abominations.

They love a trim slender figure. Flatteringly low-cut evening gowns draw no frowns from them, provided the décolletage doesn't reveal collar bones or fat arms.

Black's a Favorite

"Crazy hats" they abhor. The ultra-eccentric headgear some women are wearing this year has set them all muttering.

Most of them like black—if you don't resemble "a walking hearse," and if you lighten it now and then with a jeweled accent or a glowing touch of color. White and blue are their other two favorite hues.

They detest masses of costume jewelry—especially if it clanks. One clip or necklace is enough. Every one of them likes to see women in tailored suits and sporty clothes, but don't overdo the effect with mannish shirts and ties.

Likes And Dislikes

They like to have you give the impression that you are soft, warm and nice to touch. Clothes on the fluffy side, however, fail to get their applause.

AND PLEASED HE IS

An evening gown to please your man is designed of blue silk satin with a low cut décolletage and the sole ornament of a jeweled buckle. The only jewels worn with it are pearls. Metal silk brocade in eggshell and gold makes the wrap.

They hate: Eyebrows plucked to a hairline, false eyelashes, heavy mascara eye makeup, rouge that stands up in two, obvious bright spots, crooked stocking seams, open-heeled sandals that pop up and down, white accessories that are not fresh and women who are continually patting their hair and clothes.

They like: Natural looking make-up, bright lipstick (not too heavy and vivid), shining hair, not stiffly set, open-toed sandals

Making Greens Pleasant Duty

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 11—One pleasant duty of the Christmas season is to plan and construct greens to be used throughout the home, says Lucile G. Smith of the floriculture department, Cornell University.

Wreaths for the windows and on the doors to welcome guests, garlands over the fireplace or on the bannister in the hall, evergreen balls, table decorations, and informal bouquets enriched by soft lights add cheer obtainable in no other way, she explains.

All members of the family, both grown-ups and children, can help decorate the home, first by planning the decorations and then in pleasant hours together to make the pieces to be used.

Decorations should be planned to harmonize with the furnishings indoors and with the buildings outdoors, Miss Smith says. Some restraint should be used. Because holly and other evergreens are Christmas-like is no reason why they should be suspended from every lighting fixture and picture frame; a few boughs arranged in a vase or jar give a more pleasing and orderly appearance.

In very formal houses, conservative decorations are more effective than they are in the simpler type of home where informality is the keynote.

Cornell has a new bulletin that tells and shows how to make a variety of Christmas decorations, both for indoors and outside. Single copies are available free from the New York state college of agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y. Ask for bulletin E-373.

The Well-Dressed Home

Sophisticated Decorations Borrow the Primitive Note

VIGOR FOR MODERNISM
These designs from Africa fit into new settings and enliven their serenity.

By MARY DAVIS GILLIES
Prepared by McCall's Magazine for The Freeman

Now, to be really sophisticated, you have to be primitive—at least in decorations.

Crude and pre-historic designs have followed in popularity the peasant wares. Strangely enough, the ancient patterns go well with the most modern—both depend on clean lines and shapes, not cluttered up with doodads.

Perhaps modern decoration has been a little too serene. Certainly the African and Polynesian things bring welcome bizarre and vigorous touches. A Balinese fabric, an African carving or a horseshoe rug can give new life to any modern room.

Humor and real beauty mark some of the primitive things. For instance, there are the Ethiopian slave figures carved from dark mahogany, with brass nose-rings, anklets and spears. Earth-colored pottery heads are beautiful enough for mantel ornaments or striking lamp bases.

You can have original fabrics, called tapa cloth, imported from the South Seas, or clever printed linens copying primitive designs. Very fascinating is a version of the wonderful rock-paintings made by pre-historic bushmen in South Africa. Rhodesia—nimble little warriors chase their enemies against a background of trees and animals—brown, black and rust, on a natural ground.

All materials with a tropical tang are increasingly favored and fit the primitive vogue: Bamboo, rattan, rough leathers and fringed cottons. Although these textures are informal, it is amazing how luxurious they are when combined with metal accents.

Holiday Wrapping Notes

Black and white gift wrappings are very effective. Wrap the gift in shiny black paper and tie it with white gummed tape, silk cord or ribbon. Insert a bit of greenery, such as cedar, mistletoe or snowberries. Cut pictures and appropriate verses from last year's Christmas cards and paste or tie them on top of the package.

Let Your Letter Travel with Your Gift

By JOAN DURHAM
(AP Feature Service Writer)

Want to send a Christmas letter with your package so both will arrive at the same time?

There are two ways. One will cost a lot of money. The other won't.

If you enclose the letter in your package you'll have to pay first-class rates on the whole package. That's costly.

But if you attach the letter to the outside of the parcel you'll only have to pay first-class rates on the letter.

The package will go second, third or fourth class, depending on the contents.

You Must Use Labels

This is how to do it: Buy a package of labels printed: "This parcel contains merchandise which may be opened for inspection." You can't write or stamp those instructions on the package—but the label fulfills postoffice requirements.

Wrap your package securely with heavy cord. (Don't use tinsel twine.)

Put your own (return) address in the upper left corner. The address of the person to whom the gift is going belongs in the lower half—in the center if possible, otherwise in the lower right corner.

Then glue or tie the letter to the package.

Two Addresses Needed

The address must be on both letter and package.

If your package—or greeting card—is going to a woman: Address it "Miss" if she is unmarried—no matter how young or old she is.

Address it to "Mrs. Noel Yuletide"—if the woman is or has been married. Using the husband's first name holds whether the husband is alive, dead or divorced unless the husband has remarried and there's likely to be a mix-up or the woman is known in business by her own name. Then you may use "Mrs. Martha Yuletide."

If the mail is intended for an entire family address it "Mr. and Mrs. Noel Yuletide and family." That lets the children in on the fun of opening the package.

Use stars, trees and other Christmas shapes cut from green peppers, pimientos or sliced, cooked beets as garnishes for meat, fowl, salads or canapés in the holiday season.

WOMEN In The News

PICKETS PAPA
Anna Warshaw joined strike pickets in front of her father's manufacturing business in Brooklyn. Her father dubbed her "communist."

"STAR WOMAN"
Mrs. Clare Sheridan, author and sculptor, arrived in her native England from America where she had spent two months with Blackfoot Indians. The Indians gave Mrs. Sheridan the title, "Star Woman."

AT KING'S COMMAND
Anna Neagle, British picture star, returned to England to appear in a command performance before King George VI, said she would do scenes from "Victoria the Great."

METAL WORKER
Mary McMullen, bookkeeper in her brother's Memphis, Tenn. sheet metal shop, learned the trade while the boss was out of call, insists she'd rather fashion metal than balance accounts.

Helps For Housewives

Try steaming Brussels sprouts, broccoli, celery, asparagus, onions, carrots, cauliflower or turnips. They will keep the shapes better and won't lose much flavor. They also will cook in less time than they would if they were boiled. Use a regular steamer or put the vegetable in a large strainer or colander and suspend it in a kettle of boiling water an inch above the water line.

Suggester garnishes for holiday fowl: Prunes stuffed with diced, spiced pears; orange slices candied and covered with cranberry jelly; candied grapefruit slices spread with apple jam; cranberry jelly rounds covered with diced mint jelly; spiced peaches stuffed with pecans and browned; cranberry sauce in a bowl on halves; cooked whole beets hollowed out and stuffed with chopped pickles and olives.

Lime, lemon, pineapple or orange ice makes a refreshing topping for fruit juice or diced fruit cocktails. The ice also may be used to top a holiday punch bowl filled with chilled fruit beverages.

Use fruit juice in place of cream or milk called for in Christmas cookies. It will give added variety.

To remove those white stains from your hardwood floor first rinse the spotted area with cold water. Then rub it with a cloth dipped in two cups of clear water in which two tablespoons of spirits of turpentine have been placed. Next, wipe the area dry and apply floor polish.

Christmas Calls For Extra Glamour In Your Costumes

SWISHING GRAY

The smartest Christmas party frocks have frothy wide skirts. This one of swishing gray silk taffeta is designed with a fitted corset bodice shimmering with embroidery of beads and brilliants. White, mist gray and leaf green chiffons, crisp black nets, jewel-toned velvets and glistening gray-green satins make other full skirted dance frocks. A splash of sequins on the skirt or flowers in the décolletage give them a holiday air.

SOBER HUES

Daytime clothes for the holidays cling to the slender silhouette and are generally designed in sober hues flecked with color. The slip dress blue wool coat worn by this Christmas-spirited young American is trimmed with blue fox, while her hat is accented with a vivid blue-violet band. Exclamation points in color—red Chinese embroidery, a silver kid belt or a shimmering rose and blue pearl—accent the new black and dark-hued dresses designed for mid-day.

"SHOCKING PINK"

Glitter drama and curve-revealing cut spell glamor in holiday cocktail and dinner clothes. One of the most striking dinner gowns combines a "shocking pink" bodice with a deep contrasting blue violet skirt—both of sheer silk chiffon. Ostrich plumes in the same colors top the dramatic little hat. Short-sleeved, short-skirted black cocktail frocks and ankle-length black dinner suits are spattered with sparkle or color and worn with striking veiled hats.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

CLUBS PERSONALS

Christmas Spirit Prevailing in Clubs

Throughout the city these days women's clubs and church organizations are busy with their special preparations for Christmas parties. Already several of the clubs have had their Christmas parties, replete with Christmas trees, holiday decorations, Christmas carols and songs, and some have even been visited by Santa Claus. Other clubs have delayed the part of Santa Claus by bringing gifts to be sent to the fortunate.

The week will start with a festival of Christmas music to be given by the choir of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church on Sunday evening at 7:30.

Monday at the home of Miss Helen E. Brown, the Monday Club of St. John's Church having a Christmas luncheon at the rectory, and the Twentieth Century Club holding a special Christmas party at the home of Mrs. W. J. Cranston on Clinton Avenue.

Kingston Unit of Home Bureaus will meet on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Margaret Bertrand, 165 Bruyn Avenue, for a Christmas meeting and will make Christmas decorations. The Loyal Workers' Club of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church will have a party at the church on Tuesday also.

Wednesday seems to have been made a day of rest, although clubs scheduled to meet on those days will undoubtedly remember the holiday.

A "Yule-log party" and afternoon tea will be held by the Married Women's Club at the Y. W. C. A. The party arrangements are in charge of Mrs. C. L. Dunn and the hostesses will be Mrs. Edward Ramer and Mrs. A. DuBois Rose.

Trinity M. E. Church will have a Christmas supper party for the members of the Doer's Class on Friday.

A Christmas tea and food sale at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church, under the auspices of Circle 4 of the Ladies' Aid, will be held on Saturday afternoon. And so, those who "along to" clubs will be kept busy with parties. The Lowell Club will have its party the following week on December 20, and after Christmas is over and things are a little quieter, the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's will hold its second Christmas party, which has come to be an annual affair.

Parties Presage Busy Week-End

Many parties are on the social calendar for this week-end, one of which includes a children's theatre and supper party. Donald Hamm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Dunn, of Mountain View Avenue, was host this afternoon at a theatre and supper party in honor of his 13th birthday. His guests are Donald Everett, Jack St. John, Hugh Kegler, David Lane, Clyde Wonderly, Jr., Richard Dunn and Leo Everett, of Newburgh.

The Rev. and Mrs. Maurice W. Verno are entertaining this afternoon at the second in a series of teas for their parishioners.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Richard Miller, of Jefferson Avenue, will be hosts this evening at a dinner and dance at Broglio's. Covers will be laid for 28.

Mrs. E. Crane Chadbourne, of Stone Ridge, will entertain at a New Year's reception and tea Sunday afternoon at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Rodie will be hosts at a cocktail party at their home on Sunday afternoon.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry Lambert, of Maiden Lane, will entertain on Sunday at the first in a series of buffet suppers.

Entertained at Luncheon

Mrs. Robert R. Rodie of Albany Avenue entertained at a luncheon on Wednesday. Her guests were Mrs. E. Crane Chadbourne, Mrs. Paul Tison, Mrs. Everett Fowler, Mrs. William Warren, Mrs. George Washburn, Mrs. Henry Lambert, Bibby and Miss Priscilla Hinkley of Poughkeepsie.

The Chancellor Livingston Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution celebrated its 20th birthday on Friday, December 10, with a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Harry Hill. Approximately 40 guests were present. The guest speakers were Mrs. Robert Hamilton Gibbs, a vice president general; Mrs. Charles White Nash, a former state regent; Miss Page Schwarzwald, national chairman of credentials and state chairman of the correct use of the flag; Mrs. J. Southard of Enoch Crosby Chapter of Carmel and Mrs. William R. Anderson, regent of Wiltwyck Chapter of this city.

Each of the speakers was presented with a large corsage bouquet of violets. Mrs. Frank L. Asher, regent of the Chancellor Livingston Chapter, presided and presented the speakers.

Chancellor Livingston Chapter was organized by Mrs. Theodore De La Porte, largely from members of Wiltwyck Chapter. Mrs. De La Porte willed to the chapter her large library and genealogical works and also a valuable collection of antique glassware and porcelain. Since the chapter house is not large enough to house these collections, an upper room in the Rhinebeck Public Library has been tendered to the chapter.

After the luncheon, all repaired to the library where a dedication service was held. The prayer of dedication was offered by the Rev. Mr. Ingersoll, pastor of the Rhinebeck Baptist Church. A picture of Mrs. De La Porte backed by a bouquet of large chrysanthemums was the center of attraction.

"AVERAGE ALF" COUNTS HIMSELF OUT FOR 1940

Former Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, G. O. P. standard bearer in the 1936 presidential campaign, told newsmen in Washington, D. C., he was not a candidate for the 1940 Republican nomination, and would not accept the nomination if offered to him. Landon got together with other Republicans in the senate restaurant for a little provender as this picture was snapped. Left to right, Roy A. Roberts, managing editor of the Kansas City Star; Landon; Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas; and John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

An extensive week of assemblies featured the activities at the Kingston High School this week commencing on Monday morning and concluding with the usual "B" and "A" programs on Thursday and Friday.

How to Study Assembly
A brief but interesting talk on "How to Study," was the headline on Monday morning when Henry Dunbar, vocational director of the school, was in charge of an assembly for second-year scholars. The important phase of physical condition was the topic. According to the speaker there are several fundamental laws working in shifts that will have a big part in the students' attempt to study. Citing specific examples of these factors, Mr. Dunbar stated that these laws are: light, body comfort, air condition, and quiet.

Special Senior Assembly
On Tuesday morning all students who expect to graduate in June heard an address by Dr. James Moreland of Oswego State Normal, who spoke concerning entrance into the teaching profession. After being introduced by Principal Clarence L. Dunn, Dr. Moreland spoke of the important professions that are usually considered by the high school graduates when they are pondering upon a career for later life. Throughout the talk Dr. Moreland explained that the theory "one can educate himself, still holds true in all walks of life." Then on the other hand he said, "that no matter who the person is, he will never be completely educated regardless of how many schools are attended during his life." Still commending the idea of abundant education, Dr. Moreland said, "if this country can ever achieve the goal of having every individual educated in the one hundred percent class, it is likely that we could omit further need of lawyers and physicians."

In explanation of this he stated, "these men would be needless in our life because a one hundred percent educated nation would be free entirely from criminals and diseases." In reference to teaching, the speaker declared that in our own State of New York the pupils have one of the finest educational centers in the country. This state alone has eleven institutions of teaching in the district from Albany to Buffalo and Dr. Moreland announced that Oswego is one of the oldest schools in the state and is the second oldest in the western hemisphere.

Dame Rumor Awards
Mary Elizabeth Clough ascended the platform Wednesday morning and another special assembly for the Junior and Senior rooms was held in honor of the many Dame Rumor scribes who received their awards in the form of pins and keys through the cooperation of Miss Agnes Smith and Principal Clarence L. Dunn. Exactly 20 keys were distributed by Miss Clough to staff members, while 11 pins were awarded to the special reporters of the official school paper. Those receiving keys were: Managing Editors—Mary A. Summers, Mary Clough and Eric Feugel; Associate Editors—Betty Gill, Amy Munn, Virginia Boggs, Marge Fitzgerald and Elsie Buchanan; Business Managers—Arlene Bedford and John Hansen; Advertising Managers—Hazel Kaufman, Irvin Solomon, Ned Dunbar and George Huthstetter; Subscription Managers—Rudie Shobaken, Collins Troy and Ernest Sabo; Sports Editors—Robert Stone, Don Van Deusen and Irwin Thomas. Those receiving pins were as follows: Elaine Johnson, Jean Larkin, Margaret Fowler, Olive Clearwater, Robert Winkler, Elbert Loughran, Richard Dunn, Frank Volk, Kenneth Briggs, James Norton and Alfred Munn. The assembly came to a close with appropriate speeches by the three editorial managers.

"B" and "A" Assemblies
The programs for the Thursday and Friday assemblies this week were directed by students. A plea for further help from the students was given jovially and expertly by Robert Stone on both occasions and further assistance from the high school seems a certainty for the Mayor's Christmas Cheer Committee. Another feature was supplied by Ed Senter and Milt Taitsera, who gave an amusing show advertising the Dame Rumor Dime Dance, which will occur on December 22 and included a witty form of entertainment via a miniature broadcast with Ed Senter taking the part of an announcer while Milt Taitsera did the vocalizing. On Thursday the Banking Council offered its talents to the lower classmen in a play entitled "Drawing Interest," with Lione

New Prisma Officials
Due to the annexation of Victorine H. Honey and Emily Cragin by the Maroon staff for the annual publication of the year book, the Prisma Society held special elections for new officers last week to fill the vacancies. Agnes Cafaro was elected third vice-president, while Olive Mac Daniel and Evelyn Jones were elected as chairmen of the Charity Work. The complete body is: President, Caroline McGreevy; First vice president, Ella Guida; second and third vice presidents, Agnes Cafaro, Marjorie McCausland, fourth vice president. The recording and corresponding secretaries are Ruth Britt and Shirley Dunham.

Managers of Senior Play
Two Dame Rumor workers were presented with a worthy award early this week when it was announced that Hazel Kaufman and Eric Feugel would be the Business Managers for the forthcoming senior play which will probably be held in February. As yet the selection of the play has not been made.

Debaters Movie
According to the head of the Debating Society, a moving picture depicting the life in this country when the Indians were in power, will be presented at the school auditorium on Wednesday afternoon, December 15, at 2:15, and tickets can be procured from any member of the society.

American Legion Keeps Scrap-Book

An unusually interesting scrap-book that is very much coveted by the American Legion Post, 150, of Kingston, and also by visiting Legionnaires is the one in which newspaper clippings of all the important doings of the veterans throughout the country, but particularly in Ulster county, are kept.

The arduous task of keeping this collection intact and up to the minute falls upon the shoulders of the Post historian, Joseph E. Sills.

Diligently scanning daily newspapers for matter pertaining to Legion items, his scissors and paste-pot transplant the clippings into a permanent historic record rich in Legion achievement and rich in human idealism and effort.

It would not be surprising to find pages in this book, said Legionnaire Sills, that make for less pleasant reading. But these pages of progress, despite faults and obstacles, are impressive.

From the beating drums of the khaki-clad boys marching down Fifth avenue in New York on their return from "Over There," to the blaring trumpets of the Legionnaires marching up Fifth avenue during the recent legion convention in New York, all are recorded in this book.

Didn't See Friend.
New York, Dec. 11 (AP)—Michael Donnelly, 35, a WPA worker in mellow mood remembered early today he had a friend in the fire department.

Anxious for a chat, Donnelly rang the nearest fire alarm. A fire truck arrived, but not Donnelly's friend. Donnelly moved on to another fire box. Then another. When he turned in his fifth false alarm, his friend still failed to show up—but two patrolmen did.

P. S.—Police said it might be some time before Donnelly gets to see his friend.

May Make Benefit Bids by U. S. Mail Sale at K. of C. Hall on Dec. 17

New York, Dec. 10.—Industrial Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews today announced that all registration for employment and unemployment insurance benefits during the month of January will be by mail.

"During the first month of the coming year it is expected that several hundred thousand persons in New York state who were employed some time during 1937 but who are unemployed in January will file applications for jobs and for unemployment insurance benefits," said Commissioner Andrews. "In order to eliminate any possibility of applicants having to wait in long lines to file their applications, all registration for the first month of 1938 may be made by mail."

ALBANY MAN GRANTED INTERLOCUTORY DECREE

Adam K. Miller of 28 Lawn street, Albany, has been granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from his wife Marie Miller of 2776 Sixth avenue, Troy. Thomas A. Allen appeared for plaintiff and defendant was represented by Henry J. Crawford. The decree was granted by Justice Bergan at Albany, having been transferred from Ulster county by Justice Schrick to Justice Bergan's court.

An answer was served by the defendant to the complaint but on November 19, 1937, she withdrew her defense to the action and a decree was entered after the plaintiff's proof and without any defense being made to the action. Under the terms of the decree, which shall become final in three months, the plaintiff may remarry but the defendant is forbidden to marry. Custody of a son is given to the defendant but the plaintiff is given the right to visit the child at intervals. The sum of $6 a week is to be paid by the plaintiff for the support of the child.

Married at Troy on July 16, by the pastor of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church of Troy, the plaintiff alleges that his wife committed acts on October 25, 1937, in a basement apartment at Brevar street and Western avenue, Albany, upon which the action is brought.

Christmas was not among the earliest festivals of the Christian church.

Japs Pounding At Nanking

that there would be "a new government very soon."

The revived republican government, Chinese believed, might be recognized by Tokyo as the legitimate regime for all China because of the severance of relations between Tokyo and the Nanking government.

Chinese here viewed the prospect gloomily, calling it "a second Manchoukuo," and predicting stringent Japanese control. Definite developments were expected to await the capture of Nanking and the return from Tokyo, probably tomorrow, of Colonel Nemoto, local Japanese military mission chief. It was believed he would bring back the Japanese war office's decision on North China plans.

Chang Yen-Ching, former premier of Manchoukuo, the Japanese puppet state, has arrived with several Japanese, purportedly to plea for the return of Peking, China, who became Emperor Kang Teh of Manchoukuo, to the Peiping dragon throne. Japanese, however, were believed to look unfavorably on the scheme.

A lock of Nelson's hair was sold at a recent London auction for $60.

Phoenicia Legion Auxiliary Met

The monthly meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary of Phoenicia Post 950 was held in the Firemen's Hall on Monday evening, December 6. A large amount of business was conducted in preparing for the Christmas season. Checks of $2 each were sent to Sunmount and Castle Point for their Christmas funds. A check of $1 was sent to the Ulster County Tuberculosis fund. It was voted to again have a Christmas party for the auxiliary on Thursday, December 16, with presents, games and refreshments.

After the meeting the men of the post escorted the auxiliary to the 861 Hut where they had prepared a steak supper. After the supper games were played. At this meeting five new members joined the auxiliary—Mrs. G. Smith, Mrs. G. Cure, Miss E. Smith, Miss G. Peets and Miss M. Smith—all of Pine Hill.
